DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1, 3, 4, & 6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over in Hall (U.S. Patent 2419134) view of Murkens (U.S. Patent 4680869).

Hall discloses, in Figure 3, a device utilizable in holes (28) comprising a screw/spike (61) with screw threads on its upper part, an attachment element (4) which can be connected releasably to the screw/spike via its own screw threads and rests (3) on the component surface, wherein the attachment element has a partially spherical shell (1) made of non-magnetic material (Figures 1, 3, & 8).

Hall does not disclose an insert arranged within the shell and made of magnetic material, wherein a lower edge of the shell bears substantially flush against a lower side of the insert.

Murkens discloses a cylindrical square (12) with a magnetic insert (32) (Figure 5) (col. 2 line 42) which is adapted have other components pass through the insert for applying the square to vertical surfaces (Figure 1). Therefore, it would have been obvious to one with ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention was made to add the magnetic insert disclosed by Murkens to the shell disclosed by Hall in order that the shell can stably locate holes in vertical surfaces.

Art Unit: 2859

Hall does not disclose expressly the device is used for determining the position of or for measuring a hole in a body part of a motor vehicle. However, it has been held that a recitation with respect to the manner in which a claimed apparatus is intended to be employed does not differentiate the claimed apparatus from a prior art apparatus satisfying the claimed structural limitations. Ex parte Masham, 2 USPQ2d 1647 (1987).

3. Claims 5, 8-10 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hall in view of Murkens as applied to claims 1, 3, 4, & 6 above, and further in view of Holmes (U.S. Patent 4220187).

Hall & Murkens disclose all of the instant claimed invention as stated above in the rejection of claims 1, 3, 4, & 6, but do not disclose expressly a spike fastened to the attachment element in an asymmetrical manner with respect thereto.

Holmes discloses a self-locking fastener with an attachment element/nut (12) to which the bolt (10) fastens to in an asymmetrical manner with respect thereto (Figures 1-3, 5, & 7). Therefore, it would have been obvious to one with ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention was made to replace the attachment element taught by Hall & Murkens with the asymmetric attachment element/nut disclosed by Holmes in order that the spike could be locked into place of the attachment element.

Response to Arguments

4. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1, 3-6, & 8-10 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
